

RUSSIAN JEWISH EXPERIENCE

Autumn 2018

Mondays & Wednesdays // 2:30 pm - 4:20 pm

Professor Sasha Senderovich

RUSS 427 // JEW ST 427

5 credits VLPA, I&S, DIV

As a minority within Russian and Soviet society, Russian Jews have wrestled for centuries with what it means to belong. These questions continue today as Russian Jews have become a global diasporic community in America, Israel, and elsewhere.

In this course, students will use literature and film to explore the experience of Russian Jews during the Stalin era, the Holocaust, the Cold War, and the post-Soviet years through the lenses of identity, memory, gender, and class. Expect much lively discussion.

SLAVIC LANGUAGES AND LITERATURES

UNIVERSITY of WASHINGTON
College of Arts & Sciences

STROUM CENTER

UNIVERSITY of WASHINGTON
Henry M. Jackson School of International Studies